Preparing for your Future - Keynote

I was incredibly fortunate to part of a workshop at which Charlotte Kemp presented and her content, organisation presentation skills and audience engagement was phenomenal. She gave relevant and actionable advice that resonated with the delegates. I'd love to have her back.

Brandt vd Westhuizen,
PSAN, Namibia

Charlotte Kemp, Futures Alchemist, takes the audience on a panoramic view of the future, allowing them to identify some of the hazards in their path and to see what tools they can develop to help them get to their destination both safely and successfully.

There is a distinction to be made between limitations that are internal and external problems that are caused by our environment. Likewise, there are two types of responses - those that we have control over and those that require cooperation with others. Learning to identify between these different problem sets, means that we have a better understanding of the issues, we can take ownership and we can develop responses to issues beyond our immediate control.
